Three Rivers Press, 2007. Book Condition: New. Brand New, Unread Copy in Perfect Condition. A+ Customer Service! Summary: "Kozol's love for his students is as joyful and genuine as his critiques of the system are severe. He doesn't pull punches." Washington Post "[Charts] the positive tension between his lifelong indignation and the renewable joy of being in the classroom, something essential to all good teaching." Los Angeles Times "In lovingly supportive letters to a young woman on her first job as a first grade teacher, Kozol brings us heartwarming stories of the magic of kids who delight in words like 'wiggly' and 'wobbly,' 'bamboozle' and 'persnickety' and who could resist a child called Pineapple? This remarkable book is a testament to teachers who not only respect and advocate for children on a daily basis but who are the necessary guardians of the spirit. Every citizen who cares about the future of our children ought to read this." Eric Carle, author of The Very Hungry Caterpillar "What a wonderful book! Anyone who cares about rebuilding our public education system should read it. I could not put it down!" Linda Darling-Hammond, Charles E. Ducommun Professor of Education, Stanford University "This book cuts to the heart of the matter of what it means to be a teacher today. The truth about testing, vouchers and their impact on public schools it's all captured here. But here, too, we also experience the exhilaration of putting together lesson plans, the joys of comforting children, and the anxiety of a teacher's first days in school. Francesca's journey will leave you hopeful for our nation's children." Reg Weaver, President, National Education Association "Jonathan Kozol's advice to the teacher Francesca shows all the qualities that make him the nation's wisest and boldest and most clear-headed writer on education: his passion for...
