

Science and the Modern World: One of a Series of Lectures Presented at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. on the Occasion of Its 175th Anniversary, October 1963 to May 1964

By Jacinto Steinhardt

Springer. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 240 pages. Dimensions: 9.2in. x 6.1in. x 0.6in. During the period September 1963 to December 1964, Georgetown University commemorated the 175th anniversary of its founding by presenting a series of special lectures in the various disciplines appropriate to a university. Among the subjects covered, in separate and coherent series, were the humanities, the arts, medicine, law, and religion. One of the series, entitled as a group, Science and Society, is represented by this book. The ten papers presented here must be looked at in context: an effort was made to present to a largely lay audience a cross section of those aspects of recent advances in science and technology that were considered to have the most striking or inclusive effects on man's view of his world, on desirable public policy, and on man's anticipations as to how further advances and applications of these advances were likely to change his environment. Clearly, so ambitious an undertaking could not be carried out within the compass of ten brief lectures. Within a general structure, it was necessary to use a sampling technique. The general plan was adopted of having three lectures representative of the philosophical sector....
