Then will she please--why, exactly what is it that you want of her? questioned the president, a trifle haughtily. Speech I chorused the Three. Will Miss Davis please speak to us? asked the president. At that a very tall girl who was ineffectually attempting to hide behind little Alice Waite was pulled and pushed to her feet, and amid a sudden silence began the funniest speech that most of the class of 19-had ever listened to; but it was not so much what she said as her inimitable drawling delivery and her lunging, awkward gestures that brought down the house. When she took her seat again, resolutely ignoring persistent cries of More! the class applauded her to the echo and elected her freshman debater by acclamation. It was wonderful what a change those twenty riotous minutes had made in the spirit of the...
